2. DISCRIMINATION

Under the Act unlawful discrimination occurs in the following circumstances:

2.1 Direct discrimination

Direct discrimination occurs when an individual is treated or would treat another individual less favourably on grounds of sex, sexual orientation, gender reassignment, marital and civil partnership status, age, disability, colour, race, nationality, ethnic or national origin, religion or belief, political beliefs ("the protected categories")

It is unlawful for a recruitment consultancy to discriminate against a person on the grounds of a protected category:

- in the terms on which the recruitment consultancy offers to provide any of its services;
- by refusing or deliberately omitting to provide any of its services;
- in the way it provides any of its services.

Direct discrimination would also occur if a recruitment consultancy accepted and acted upon a job registration from an employer which states that certain persons are unacceptable because they are members of a protected category, unless one of the exceptions applies, for instance, the job demands a genuine occupational requirement or, in the case of age, the discrimination can lawfully be justified.

2.2 Indirect discrimination

Indirect discrimination occurs when an agency or employer applies a provision, criterion or practice generally, but which is such that a proportion of persons in the protected category who can comply with it are considerably smaller than the proportion of persons who are not in that protected category.

Indirect discrimination would also occur if a recruitment consultant accepted and acted upon an indirectly discriminatory instruction from an employer.

If the vacancy requires characteristics which amount to an occupational requirement or the instruction is discriminatory but there is an objective justification, Core Talent Recruitment Limited will not proceed with the vacancy unless the client provides written confirmation of the occupational requirement, exception or justification.

2.3 DISABLED PERSONS

2.3.1 Direct discrimination

Direct discrimination against a person occurs where, if for a reason which relates to the disabled person's ability, an individual:

- treats him less favourably than he treats, or would treat others to whom that reason does not or would not apply, and
- the employer cannot show that the treatment in question is justified.

Or

- If the ground of a disabled person's disability, he treats the disabled person less favourably than he treats or would treat a person not having that particular disability, whose relevant circumstances, including his abilities, are the same as, or not materially different from, those of the disabled person. This type of direct discrimination can never be justified.

2.3.3 Duty to make reasonable adjustments and provide auxiliary aids and services

This is a similar protection to indirect discrimination in the other protected categories.

Where a provision, criterion or practice applied by or on behalf of an employer, or any physical feature of the employer's premises, places a disabled person at a substantial disadvantage in comparison with persons who are not disabled, it will be the duty of an employer to take such steps as are reasonable, in all the circumstances of the case, to remove the provision, criterion, practice or physical feature.

Agencies must take reasonable steps to provide auxiliary aids or services if this would make it easier for the disabled person to use their services. For instance, an appropriate auxiliary aid or service can include the provision of a sign language interpreter.

Core Talent Recruitment Limited will not discriminate against a disabled person on the ground of disability:-

- in the arrangements i.e. application form, interview or arrangements for selection for determining whom a job should be offered; or
- in the terms on which employment or engagement of temporary workers is offered; or
- by refusing to offer, or deliberately not offering the disabled person a job for reasons connected with their disability; or
- in the opportunities afforded to the person for receiving any benefit, or by refusing to afford, or deliberately not affording him or her any such opportunity; or
- by subjecting the individual to any other detriment (detriment will include refusal of training or transfer, demotion, reduction of wage, or harassment).

Core Talent Recruitment Limited will accordingly make career opportunities available to all people with disabilities and every practical effort will be made to provide for the needs of staff, candidates and clients.

Wherever possible Core Talent Recruitment Limited will make all reasonable adjustments to hallways, passages and doors in order to provide and improve means of access for disabled employees and workers. However, this may not always be feasible, due to circumstances creating such difficulties as to render such adjustments as being beyond what is reasonable in all the circumstances.
